¡Hola! I'm Dora. And this is my friend, Kate. I love acting out stories with her. When you want to do a show, Kate's the one you need to know!

Aww, thanks, D!
Remember when we put on a puppet show
for the kids in the neighborhood? I had
so much fun writing the story,
painting the set and using my art supplies to make the puppets!

It was almost show time when I realized that the Three Little Piggy puppets were missing. We searched for them backstage, and suddenly found ourselves in Puppet World, where all my puppets had come to life!

Two of the Piggies were looking for their brother, Littlest Piggy. "We have to help him finish his brick house before the Big Bad Wolf blows it down!" they said.

On our way to Littlest Piggy,
we ran into some other puppet friends. They needed our help!

Dora gave the Seven Dwarves a hand...

...while I helped the Gingerbread Man with his sticky situation.

Things were looking hairy for Rapunzel's Prince, but working together, we released him in no time!

We had to hurry to Littlest Piggy, so Dora used her magic charm bracelet to make a unicorn appear! Woo-hoo!

Littlest Piggy called to us, "Help me! My house isn't finished!"

And who do you think came to help? ¡Sí! All our puppet friends!

Oh, no! The wolf showed up too, and he was just as big and bad as can be. He said, "I'm gonna huff and puff and blow this house down!"

But the brick house was so strong that the wolf only huffed and puffed himself into the lake!

The wolf was so grateful that he promised never to be bad again. Now he's the Big Nice Wolf, and they all lived happily ever after.

And back in Playa Verde, we put on the best puppet show ever!

Have you ever put on a show?
