MONSTROUS MANNERS

MANNERS ON VACATION

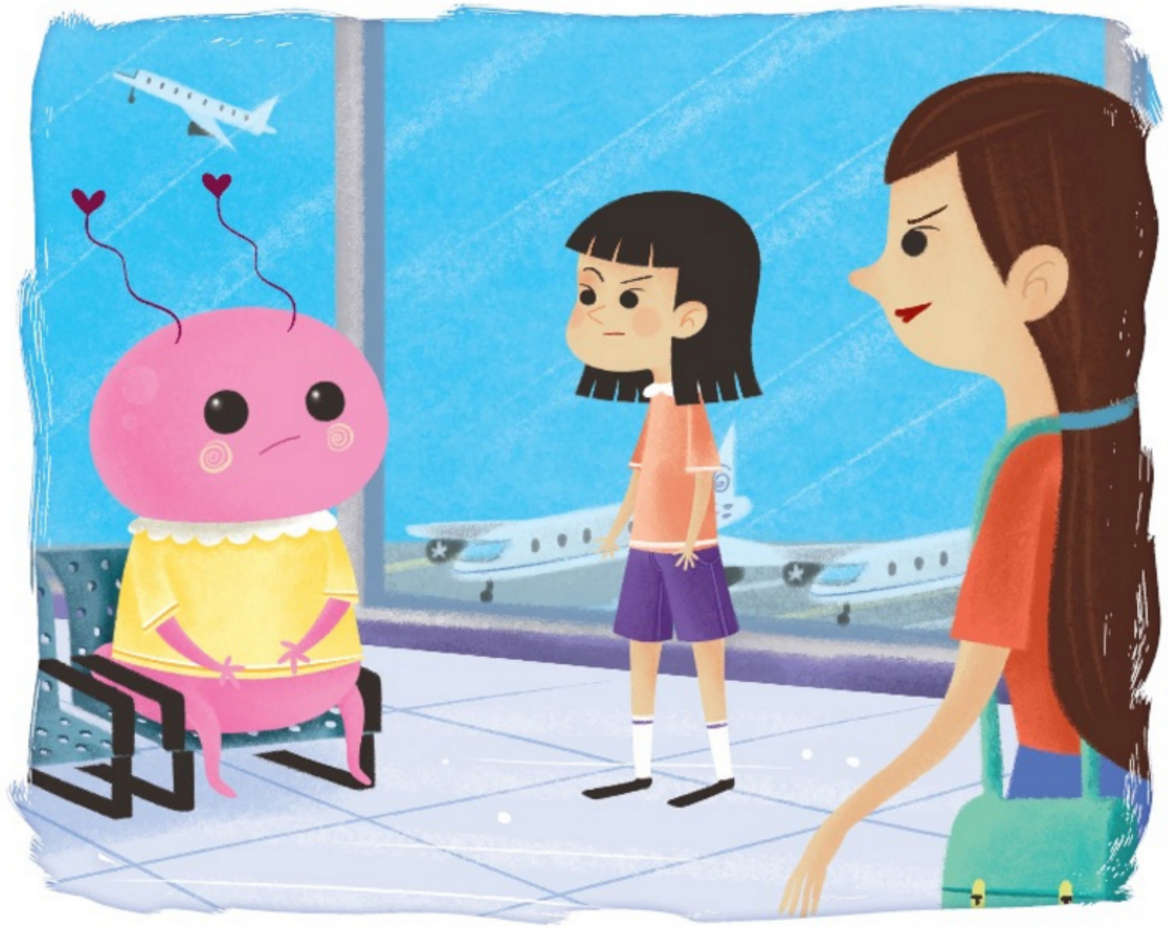
BY BRIDGET HEOS ILLUSTRATED BY KATYA LONGHI

Stop, Monster! It's bad manners to run around in the airport and bump into people.



Mom says to say you're sorry. And sit in time out.
You need to have better manners on vacation, Monster.

Look, it's time to board the plane. Don't worry, I'll show you how to act politely.

What do you do on the plane? No, Monster. Sit quietly and don't bother the other passengers. Find something to do.

Not that! You're kicking the person in front of you! Why don't you read a book, play a game, or look out the window?

It's time to land. How time flies! The flight attendant is asking you to put your tray up. Listening to the flight attendant is good manners. It will also keep you safe.

It's time to exit. But wait your turn. The first row goes first, then the second, and so on. I know it's hard to wait, but we have to be patient.

We're here, Monster! What do you do when you see your grandparents?

That's right! You say hello and give them a monster hug.

How can you be a good guest at your grandparents' house? Don't make a mess! Keep your room clean.

Say thank you for the delicious food. And always offer to help clean up. (But try not to drop the dishes!)

Now, let's go to the beach! The sand is hot. But it's bad manners to step on other people's towels. Wear flip-flops and walk on the sand.

Watch your step! Someone just built that sandcastle. Oops! Good job saying you're sorry.

It was just an accident. Let's help rebuild the sandcastle too. It's always good manners to help.

Tonight, we're staying in a hotel. There are lots of other guests here, so no running or yelling in the halls. And no cartwheels either!

Try to get some sleep. Tomorrow we visit . . .

. . . an amusement park! Good job waiting in line, Monster.

Usually it's not polite to yell unless there is an emergency. But yelling is okay on a roller coaster!

Good job, Monst—hey, you're not a monster after all. You're my little sister Tiana. And you've learned your manners on vacation. Now, let's go watch a monster movie back at the hotel!

GOOD MANNERS ON VACATION

1. No running in airports, train stations, hotels, or other public places.
2. Sit quietly on a plane, train, or bus.
3. No kicking the seat in front of you.
4. Greet relatives with a smile, handshake, or hug.
5. Keep your room clean when you are a guest.
6. Say thank you for meals.
7. Help your host clean up.
8. At the beach, no throwing sand or stepping on others' things.
9. At hotels, be quiet so you don't bother other guests.
10. Wait nicely in lines.