DORA & DIEGO

READY TO RIDE!

Dora, Diego, and Boots are always on the go! Every day they explore faraway places all over the world to rescue animals in need. To get to where they are needed most, they fly airplanes, ride boats, and so much more!

It doesn't matter how far their travels take them—Dora, Diego, and Boots always remember all of the amazing places they have been.

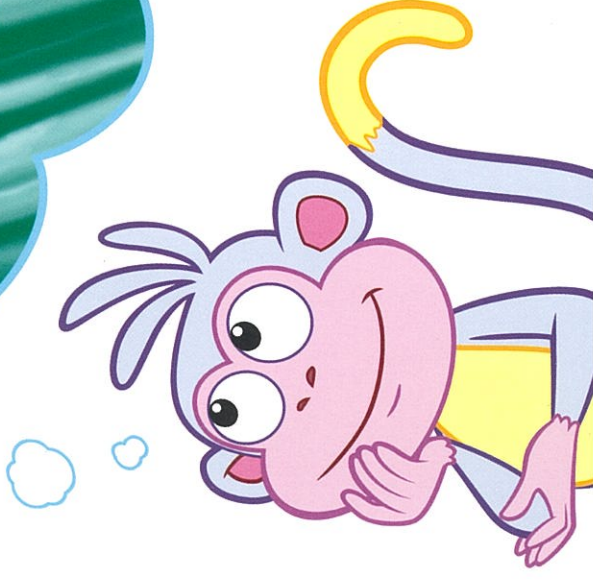

Diego loved the time that he flew a hang glider over the rainforest! "I flew the hang glider to rescue a baby hawk," said Diego. "Did you know that hang gliders soar through the sky just by floating in the wind?"

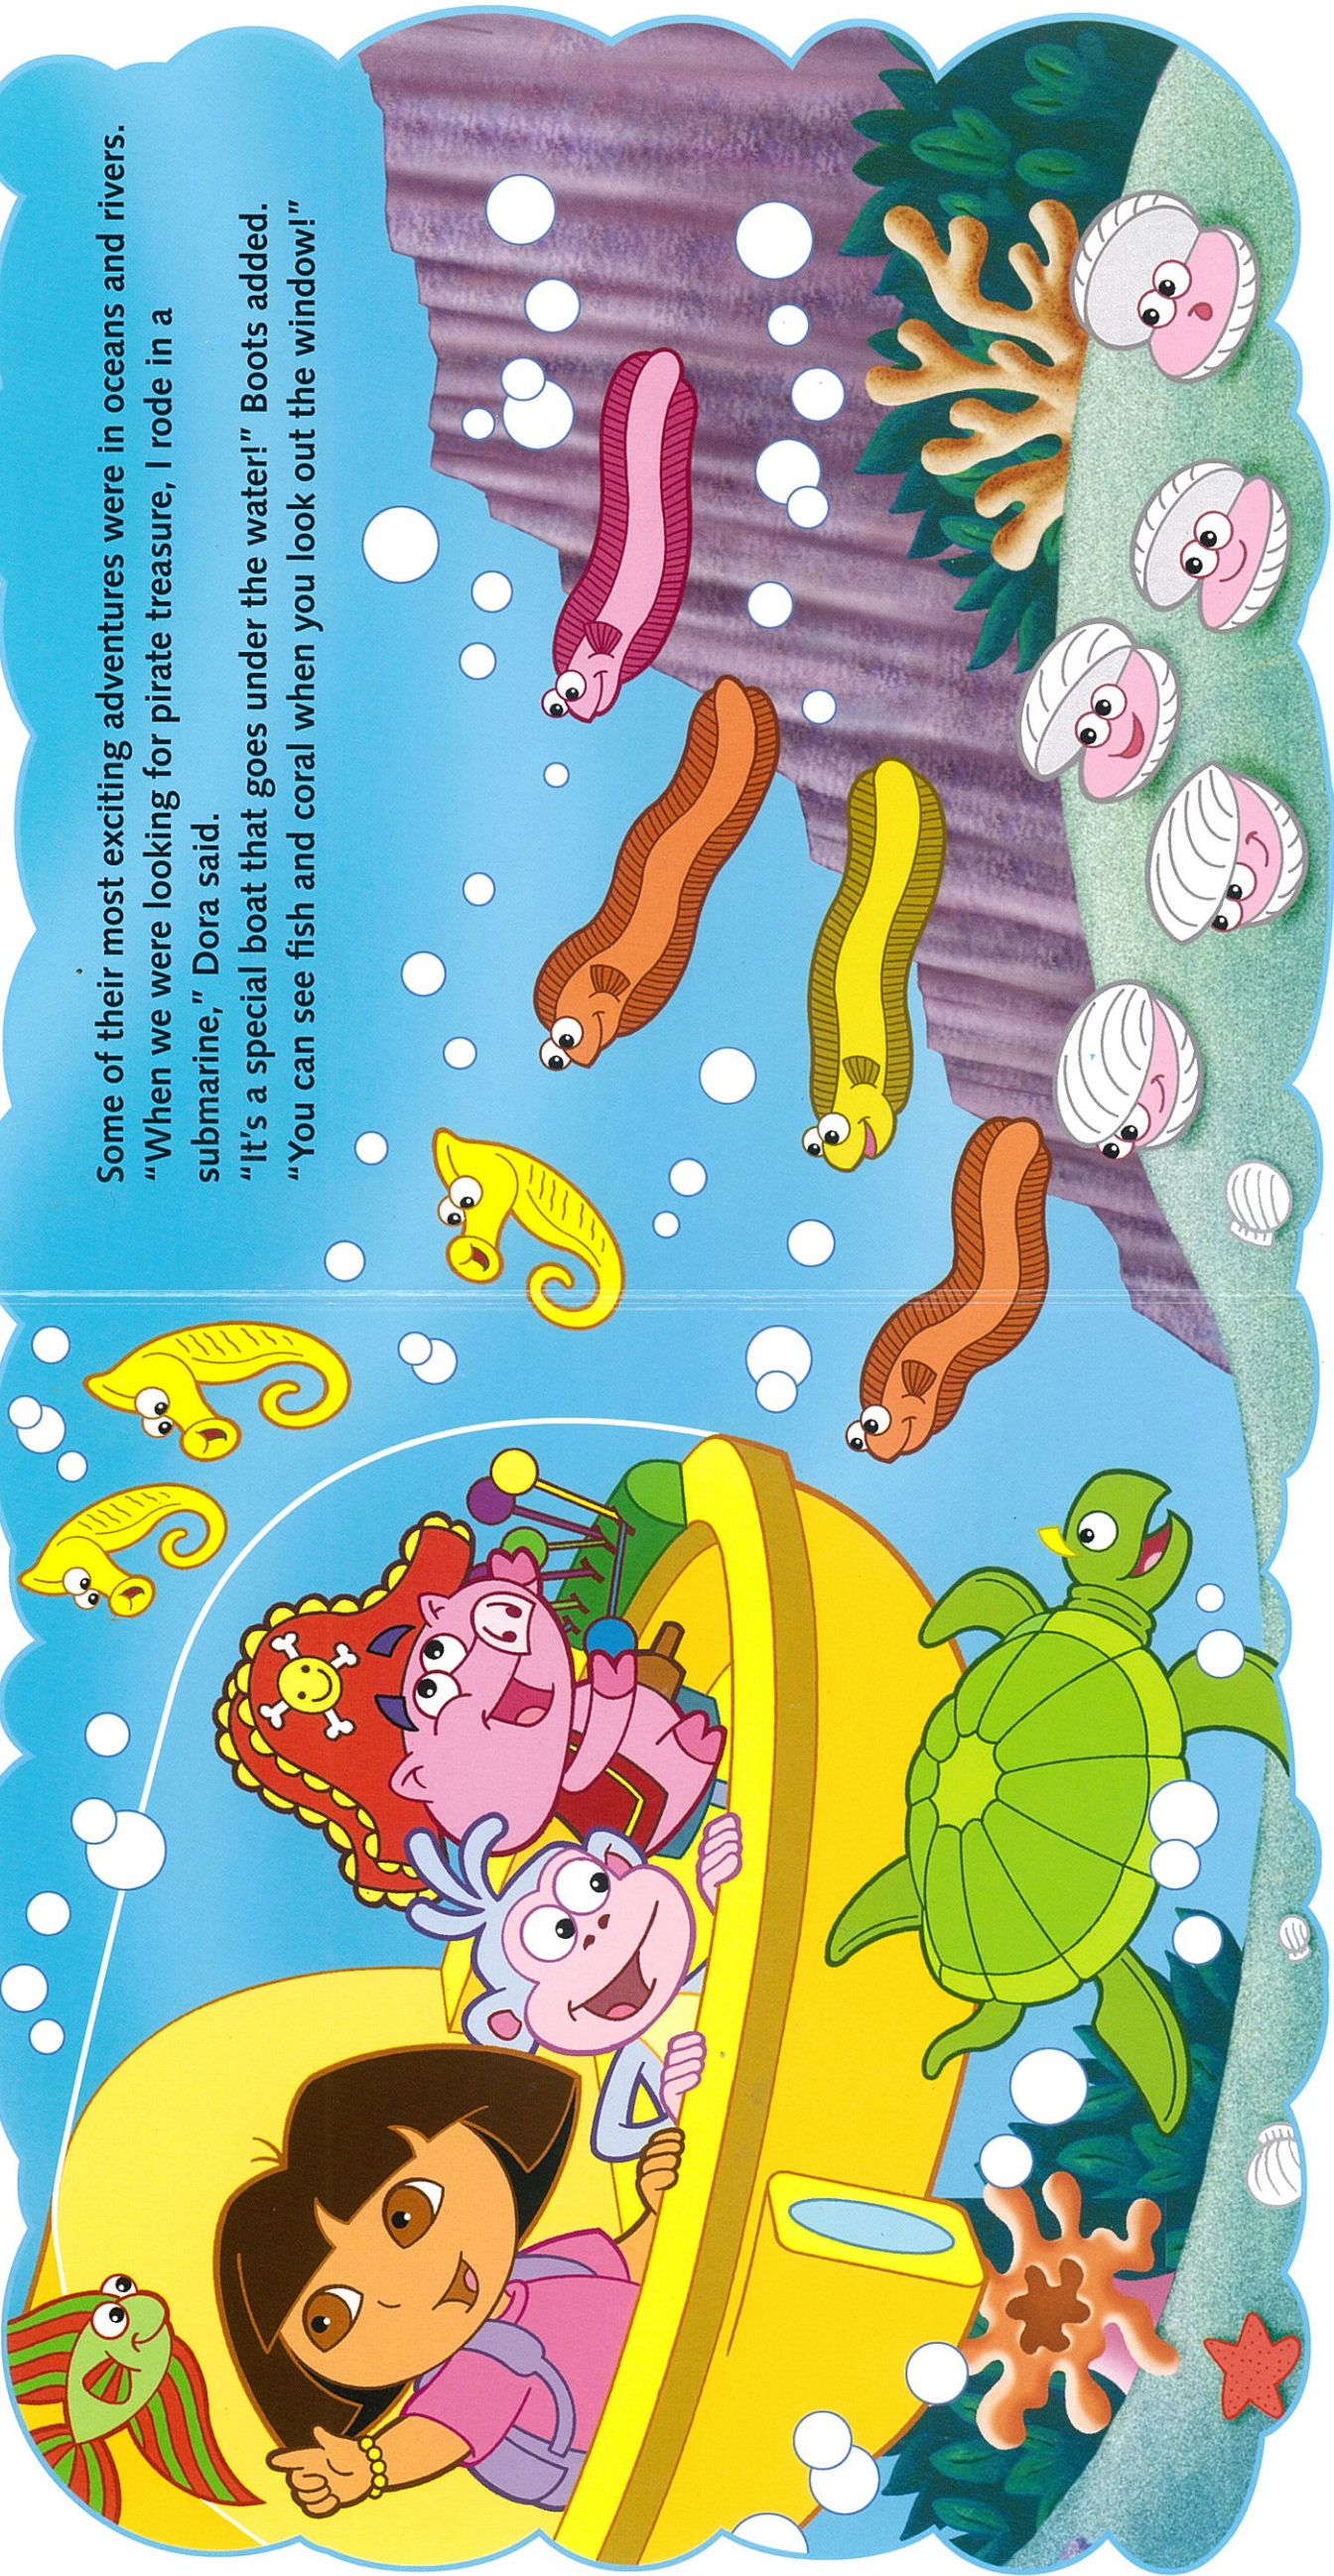

"That's right! They go really fast!" said Dora. "¡Muy rápido!"

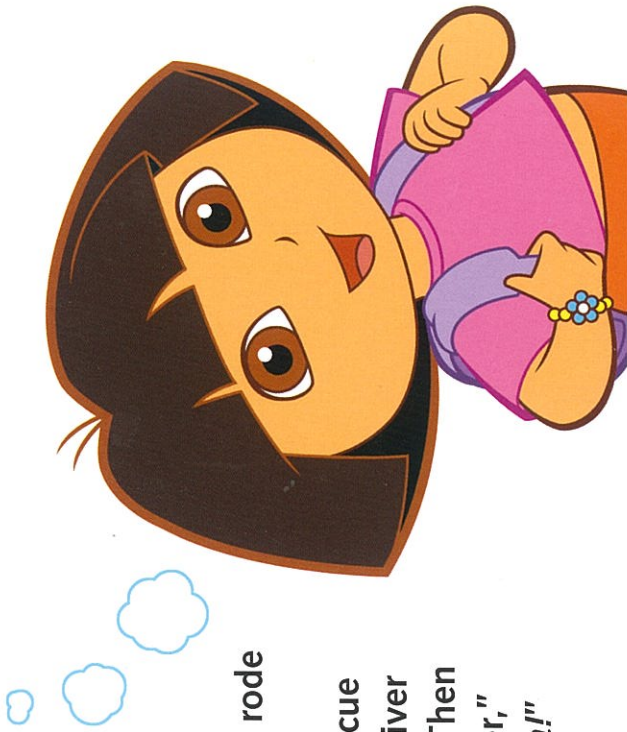

Boots remembered the time he and Dora rode a zip line across Emerald Canyon. "Were you scared?" asked Diego. "A little," Boots said. "But I knew my best friend, Dora, was there to help me!"

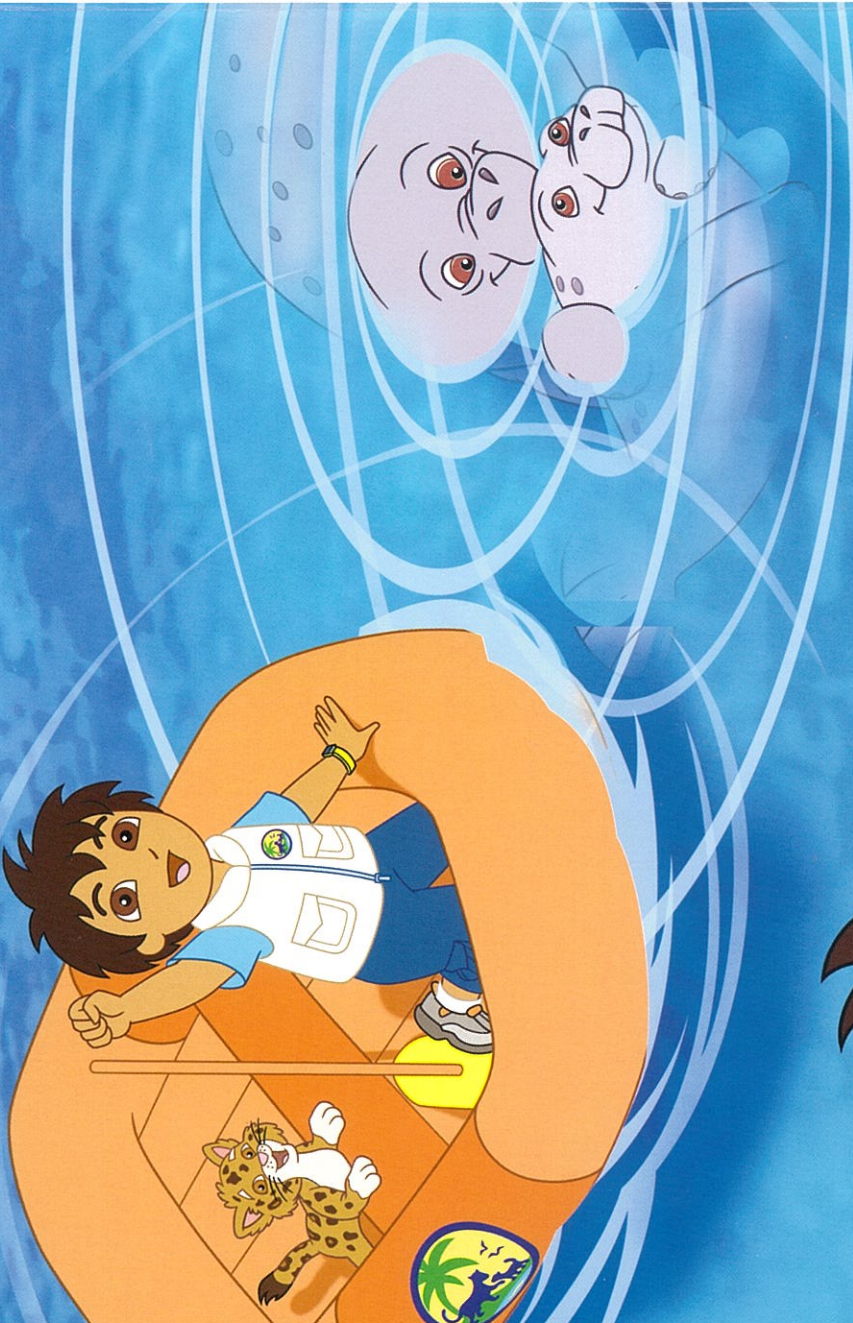

Some of their most exciting adventures were in oceans and rivers.
"When we were looking for pirate treasure, I rode in a submarine," Dora said.
"It's a special boat that goes under the water!" Boots added.
"You can see fish and coral when you look out the window!"

Dora remembered when she rode in a raft with Diego!
“We were on our way to rescue a wolf pup when we saw a river otter that needed our help. Then we threw him a life preserver,” added Dora. “¡Qué aventura!”

“I use a submarine for some of my ocean missions too!” said Diego. “On another mission I used my Rescue Raft to lead the manatees to a safe new home!”

"In the Arctic I used a water scooter to help a polar bear get to safety," Diego said. "Water scooters can race through the water superfast!"
"Yeah, and after we rode the water scooters,
we flew in a helicopter to reunite baby polar bears with their mamis," said Dora.

"Helicopters are great rescue vehicles!" said Diego.
"They can hover in place, and fly backward and even sideways."

Boots really liked flying through the sky in something else—a hot-air balloon. “We were superhigh in the air. Right, Dora?” “Sí, Boots,” said Dora. “Hot-air balloons float really high just by using hot air!”

It was time for their next adventure! Diego climbed behind the wheel of his Rescue Truck. “Ready for an adventure?” he asked. “¡Vámonos!” said Dora. “Let’s go!” And off they went!
