

Strawberry Shortcake and the Friendship Party

Comes with a Strawberry
Shortcake friendship card!

Strawberry Shortcake
and the Friendship Party

Grosset & Dunlap

ISBN 0-448-43222-6

50499>

EAN

9 780448 432229

Strawberry Shortcake™ © 2003 Those Characters From Cleveland, Inc.
Used under license by Penguin Group (USA) Inc. All rights reserved.
Published by Grosset & Dunlap, a division of Penguin Young Readers Group, 345 Hudson Street, New York, NY 10014. GROSSET & DUNLAP is a trademark of Penguin Group (USA) Inc. Published simultaneously in Canada. Printed in USA.

The scanning, uploading and distribution of this book via the Internet or via any other means of the publisher is illegal and punishable by law. Please purchase only authorized electronic editions, and do not participate or encourage electronic piracy of copyrighted materials.
Your support of the author's rights is appreciated.

ISBN 0-448-43222-6 B C D E F G H I J

Strawberry Shortcake and the Friendship Party

By Monique Z. Stephens
Illustrated by Carolyn Bracken

Grosset & Dunlap • New York

One day, Strawberry Shortcake and her little sister, Apple Dumplin', were looking through a photo album. It was full of pictures of their best friends.

"I always have such berry fun times with my friends," Strawberry said. "I wish I could show them how much they mean to me."

"I know!" Strawberry exclaimed. "I'll have a party for all of my friends!"

Strawberry Shortcake quickly got out her art supplies and made some invitations.

"Invitations? Party?" Honey said. "I love a good party! If it were me, I wouldn't let a little wind get in the way of my party. Why, when I delivered mail for the Queen, I traveled through rain, sleet, and snow to get the job done! Here, give me the invitations. I'll deliver them for you."

"Oh, Honey, you're the best!" said Strawberry Shortcake. "Thank you berry much!" She put four of the invitations inside Honey's saddlebag, and then handed the last one to Honey.

"An invitation for me?" Honey asked. "Thanks, Strawberry! I've never been to a friendship party before!"

As Honey trotted down the Berry Trail, a strong gust of wind lifted the flap of her saddlebag. Strawberry's party invitations went flying everywhere!

"Oh, no!" cried Honey. She galloped back and forth, trying to catch the invitations as they swirled in the wind. She found one in the low branches of a tree, plucked another from a bird's nest, and chased a third down the road.

"Phew! I think I've finally got them all!" Honey said. She tucked the invitations safely in her bag and then set off again to deliver them.

The next day, Orange Blossom, Huckleberry Pie, and Ginger Snap all stopped by Strawberry's house to tell her they could come to the party.

"Thanks for responding so quickly, everybody," Strawberry said. "I can't wait for the party! See you on Saturday!"

"Honey, Orange Blossom, Ginger Snap, and Huckleberry Pie are all coming to my party!" Strawberry said happily. Then she frowned. "But I haven't heard from Angel Cake yet. Oh, well—I bet she's on her way over right now to tell me she can come."

Strawberry waited for Angel Cake, but she never came over.

Later that afternoon, Orange Blossom stopped by Angel's cake shop. "Hi, Orange Blossom!" said Angel Cake. "Did you come over to play?" Orange Blossom shook her head. "I can't today—I have to pick some oranges from my orchard," she said. "I want to order cupcakes for Strawberry's friendship party. Bring them over on Saturday and we can go to the party together, okay? See you then!" Orange Blossom gave Angel a friendly wave and left.

"Strawberry's having a friendship party?" Angel said sadly. "Why didn't she invite me?"

For two whole days, Angel tried to figure out why she hadn't been invited to Strawberry Shortcake's party. Is Strawberry mad at me? Angel wondered. Did I do something wrong?

On Saturday, Angel slowly walked over to Orange Blossom's tree house to deliver the cupcakes.

"Thanks, Angel!" Orange Blossom said with a big smile. "Your strawberry cupcakes are Strawberry's favorite kind. Ready to go to the party?"

"No, I'm not going," Angel Cake said sadly.

"Why not?" Orange Blossom asked, surprised.

"Because Strawberry didn't invite me!" replied Angel Cake with tears in her eyes.

"But there must be some mistake!" Orange Blossom said. "It's a friendship party, and you're one of Strawberry's berry best friends. Come to the party with me so we can ask her what happened."

Angel shook her head. "No way! I can't go to the party if I wasn't invited!" she said in a firm voice.

"I guess we're not such good friends after all," Angel said sadly.

Orange Blossom walked over to Strawberry's house.

"Oh, good, Orange Blossom's here!" Huckleberry Pie said. "Now we're just waiting for Angel Cake. Then the party can start!"

Strawberry shook her head sadly. "I don't think Angel is coming. I haven't seen her in days. And she didn't let me know she couldn't come to my party."

"But Angel Cake thinks she wasn't invited!" exclaimed Orange Blossom.

"What?" Strawberry asked, looking confused. "Why would she think that? I sent her an invitation! Honey delivered it for me."

"Oh, no!" Honey cried suddenly.

"What's wrong, Honey?" asked Strawberry Shortcake.

"I just realized that I didn't deliver an invitation to Angel Cake!" Honey said quickly. "There was this big gust of wind and the invitations went flying everywhere. I thought I got them all, but I must have missed Angel Cake's invitation. I'm sorry, Strawberry."

"That's okay, Honey," Strawberry Shortcake replied. "It was just a mistake. But poor Angel Cake! She must feel so upset about being left out. I have to go to her house right now to explain what happened!"

"And I'm coming with you!" said Honey.

